Note: This is a nofluff book with almost an unorganized content. But it worths your time.. ;-)

You can share it with anyone as long as the content is intact!

Hello everyone, this is Melvin Dichoso and I run a blog at "The Melvin Blog". Let me give you a brief overview of who the hell I am. I am an 18 year old student from Philippines who had some success with affiliate marketing (just a little)

Enough of it now, so in this book you will learn how I make money with pepperjam affiliate network.

Overview

Pepperjam Network is an affiliate network managed by affiliate marketers themselves. It uses Web 2.0 and some advanced tracking tools to help you get started.

Signing Up

Signing up is very easy. All you need is a website and that's it. After signing up you will have to wait for three days before they can accept you in their program PepperJam Network and I had a partnership way back July that has extended until this August. Everyone who will sign under me will get $10 signup bonus. Now you can go to there site directly, but well you will not get \$10 bonus ;-)

Completing your account

The screenshot displays a user account settings interface. At the top, there is a red header for 'Additional Websites' with a minus sign icon. Below this is a button labeled 'Add Additional Site'. A table lists two websites with their URLs and 'Delete' buttons. The second section, 'Promotional Methods', has a grey header with a minus sign icon and a list of 18 marketing methods, each with a checkbox indicating its status.

Now this is something that you have to fill in carefully. At the top right you can see you're transparency rating. This is basically just a rating of how you disclose your marketing tactics. It's important to disclose it in your profile. Not only it will increase your transparency rating but it will also help you have a long and better relationship with merchants.

Pepperjam Network has a huge marketplace with a lot of offers. Target your niche, pick a product to promote and that's it.

 Secret tip: Promote products that offer signups for free. It's relatively easy to promote it. After all its free and requires nothing from people... ***

Read Terms Carefully

This is another important thing to keep in mind. Different merchants have different terms. Some allow shady stuffs, some does not. It is important to read their terms carefully before joining and promoting them. After all you might not want to lose what you have worked for!

Setting up your campaign

PPC Campaigns → Well I can so much say I am not an expert on PPC Campaigns. I had some little success with it so I never put too much on it. In case you are into it, I recommend Zac Johnson's tactics on PPC Marketing.

Email Campaign → This one is great though you have to spend some dimes on it. You have to build a squeeze page wherein you can capture email subscriptions. There are plenty of ways actually and one of them that is proven is offering a product for free.

Blog → If you have a powerful blog, then it's a sure hit! People who read your blog and comment are people who feel your blog is interesting. You can turn those loyalties to cash.

Incentivizing → This is basically giving them something to sign up with your offers. Either cash, entrecard credits, and etc. I know a lot of people making millions with incentivising offers.

tip: Some merchants do not allow incentivizing so like what I've said read their terms carefully.*

Word of Mouth → Shoemoney on his blog said the best way of promoting is word of mouth. Now you cant get wrong with him. He's in a super affiliate status and making a lot of money with it.

Now I assume you are now getting good conversions. You have to remember to be focused. Rinse, lather, repeat! A simple but powerful statement. PJN based on my experience pay after a month via Check, wire transfer or Paypal.

Closing thoughts

So I am not saying I make a lot of money with PepperJam, but if a student like me has done it part-time then... well it's up to you.

You need to be focused again. Many people I know, have stopped after not making money on their first week. I'm tired of people believing to get rich quick. I hope you're not one of them!

What I stated here is how a newbie or someone can make money w/o touching PPC and SEO too much. Again the sky is the limit!
